

THE GEORGIA
TRUST
RECLAIM • RESTORE • REVITALIZE

INDUSTRY COUNCIL

Combining Sustainable Architecture with Preservation Philosophy.

The Georgia Trust Industry Council is pleased to present the next in its series of informal gatherings to highlight Preservation Industry issues. The event will take place November 18, 2004, and will feature the adaptive reuse of historic Herren's Restaurant.

In addition to a brief historical overview by Mr. Ed Negri, former owner of Herren's, a panel composed of the architect, contractor, owner, consultants and a moderator will present the challenges and successes associated with combining preservation philosophy with sustainable building practices.

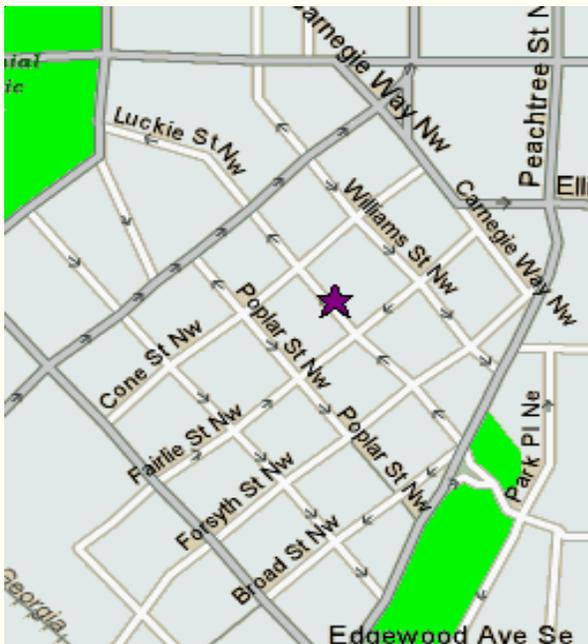

The discussion will be followed by a hard-hat tour of the former restaurant which has been transformed into the Balzer Theater at Herren's.

Historic Photo Courtesy
Ed Negri

Rendering Courtesy Surber,
Barber, Choate & Hertlein

Date: November 18, 2004

Time: 6:30 - 8:30pm

Place: Across the street from Herren's at 109 Luckie Street, Atlanta, GA 30303
(click here for directions)

Panel:

Tom Little - Surber, Barber, Choate, & Hertlein
Joe Thompson - Gay Construction
Robert Hoffman - Theatrical Outfit
Jay Enck - Commissioning & Green Building
Services

Moderator:

Markam Smith - Smith Dalia Architects

To R.S.V.P Contact: Anne Chance
achance@lasarchitect.com

Parking available in lots surrounding the venue.

This is a free event sponsored by The Georgia Trust Industry Council, a membership group of preservation industry businesses and organizations in support of The Georgia Trust. For information about becoming a member and its associated benefits, click below or contact Sarah McCullough at smccullough@georgiatrust.org.

Click Here for The Georgia Trust Industry Council Membership Information:

http://www.georgiatrust.org/preservation_resources/IC_membership_form.pdf

If you are already a member, we thank you for your support!