

What: The statewide preservation conference is Georgia's premier gathering of professionals and students from across the state in preservation, planning, architecture, archaeology, history, government, and law. Over three days, attendees engage in dynamic presentations, educational sessions, local tours, field workshops, and networking opportunities, exploring topics such as historic preservation, architectural history, cultural landscapes, landscape architecture, preservation law, and related fields.

Why it Matters: Proceeds from the conference directly support The Georgia Trust for Historic Preservation's programs and Historic Preservation Division, Georgia Department of Community Affairs, helping to protect and promote Georgia's historic places for future generations.

Where and When: November 5-7, 2025 in Athens, Georgia.

Who We Are: The conference is hosted by the Historic Preservation Division of the Georgia Department of Community Affairs and The Georgia Trust for Historic Preservation.

Our Partners: Local and organizational partners include:

- Historic Athens
- Athens-Clarke County Planning Department
- Masters of Historic Preservation Program, College of Environment + Design, University of Georgia
- Georgia African American Historic Preservation Network
- Georgia Alliance of Planning Commissions (GAPC)
