Luis Barragan Tour & Frida Kahlo Museum and Coyoacán

Born in Guadalajara in 1902, Luis Ramiro Barragán Morfín is regarded as the most prominent figure in modern Mexican architecture. By the time of his death in 1988, his personal and way of working had attained almost mythical status, and the interest in his oeuvre has increased ever since. Along with Mathias Goeritz, developed the so called “emotional architecture”. This style was understood as an example of an architecture whose main function is emotion. Light, color and volumes are conceived to influence the experience of the viewer.

Mexico City is not completed if miss Frida Kahlo’s blue house. Frida Kahlo, painter and highlighted representative of “Mexicanism”; For her fierce convictions, her extraordinary artworks or the ways she portrayed tradition, is worth-knowing-better figure. Enter Casa Azul, the ticket to a rich, deep-dive into Frida’s life and style. Its location is at the heart of one Mexico City’s most enchanting neighborhoods, Coyoacán.
