10 PLACES IN PERIL
TEN HISTORIC PLACES THAT NEED YOUR HELP
GEORGIA TRUST’S SUCCESS IS DUE to DONORS’ GENEROSITY

As we begin another year, I would like to acknowledge the generous gifts of our members to our year-end appeal, our Rhodes Hall Plant Campaign and our many other initiatives.

The Rhodes Hall landscape project has truly transformed our headquarters making it safer, enhancing our security, and making it infinitely more attractive. Dean DuBose Smith’s remarkable gift was the catalyst for this wonderful project.

We are also greatly indebted to Les and Barbara Callahan for creating the Callahan Incentive Award this past year. The Georgia Trust issued $10,650 from the inaugural Callahan Incentive Grant. We received more than 30 applicants and chose five recipients based on the grant criteria. The funding will help take these worthy preservation projects across the finish line. This year’s recipients are the Lexington Manse, Madison-Morgan Cultural Center, Sunnyside Community School, Cassina Garden Club and Ruth Hartley Moseley Memorial Center.

Finally, we are so indebted to Mr. Gibson Cornwell who made provisions for The Georgia Trust in his last will and testament. Mr. Cornwell left us over $130,000. Our Board of Trustees decided to create the Gibson Cornwell Technology Fund with the proceeds of this legacy gift. This gift has enabled The Georgia Trust to update our computer systems and launch our dynamic new website.

On behalf of the Board of Trustees and staff, it is my privilege to gratefully acknowledge all of the support of our dedicated members.

GEORGIA TRUST UNVEILS NEW GRAPHIC IDENTITY

The Georgia Trust recently unveiled a new look! Thanks to a generous gift from the late Gibson Cornwell, the Trust was able to hire Biscuit Studios of Atlanta to redesign the Trust’s logo and create a mobile friendly website, which you can view at GeorgiaTrust.org. The Trust also rolled out a new look for our eblasts and Rambler. We hope you enjoy!

MARK YOUR CALENDARS

RAMBLE TO NATCHES
February 21-25, 2018
(with optional New Orleans Pre-trip Extension)
Immerse yourself in the rich history and culture of the Mississippi River Delta, where you’ll have privileged access to privately owned creole plantations, antebellum mansions and historically significant sites.

2018 SPRING RAMBLE
April 27-29, 2018
Columbus, Georgia
Tour beautifully restored historic homes and buildings in Georgia’s Fountain City.

SPRING STROLL OF MACON GARDENS AND HOUSES
May 4-6, 2018
Hay House, Macon
Enchanting private gardens and beautiful homes await your discovery during middle Georgia’s premier house and garden event.

You are invited to The Georgia Trust’s biggest party of the year! Join us on March 3, 2018 for The Georgia Trust’s 34th Annual Preservation Gala, Town & Country. The event will take place in the Kingswood neighborhood of Atlanta at the historic Haverty-Davis House, owned by Evelyn and Ernie Davis. Event chairs Peggy and John Shepard and David A. Smith are helping to honor eight outstanding individuals from across the state who have worked diligently for historic preservation in Georgia: Suzy and Robert Currey (Sparta); Pat and Joe Edwards (Barnesville); Sally and Carl Gable (Atlanta); Senator George Hooks (Americus); and Chris Lambert (Madison).

Enjoy an evening of cocktails, food and dancing at this classic Georgian home designed by notable architect James Means. With its formal front exterior built with reclaimed brick to the white clapboard rear reminiscent of the English countryside, the house evokes the Town & Country theme. Sip a sophisticated cosmos or southern old-fashioned as you taste an array of dishes from top Atlanta caterers and take in the stunning architecture of this stately home. Don’t miss out on one of the Trust’s most legendary galas yet at this iconic Atlanta estate.

To become a patron or purchase tickets for the Gala, visit GeorgiaTrust.org or call our Special Events Manager at (404) 885-7812.
RHODES HALL LANDSCAPE COMPLETED
DEDICATION CEREMONY CELEBRATES THE LIFE OF LONGTIME GEORGIA TRUST SUPPORTER

The Georgia Trust for Historic Preservation hosted a dedication and ribbon cutting ceremony to mark the completion of a new landscape at Rhodes Hall on November 21, 2017. This completes the final stage of Rhodes Hall’s sustainable rehabilitation, which began in 2013, following a capital campaign that raised $2.7 million.

Made possible by a generous gift from Dean DuBose Smith (pictured) in loving memory of her mother Frances Woodruff “Duffie” DuBose, the sustainable landscape features improved visibility and accessibility and alleviates issues with drainage, erosion, parking and lighting. Other funding was provided by the Lettie Pate Evans Foundation, SunTrust Trusteed Foundation: Thomas Guy Woolford Charitable Trust, Georgia Power Foundation and many others.

Dean DuBose Smith unveiled a plaque that commemorates the life of her mother, Frances Woodruff DuBose, a longtime, dedicated supporter of The Georgia Trust.

Johnston Bed Returns to Hay House

As Hay House implements the plan for restoration of the Bedroom (Third) Level of the house in 2018, with the Hall returning to the Johnston 1860s period and four bedrooms returning to the late Felton Era, 1912-1926, staff are also formulating a corresponding plan for the restoration of original Johnston-Felton furniture and seeking additional pieces from that family or similar items of the period. An original Johnston bed, in the Rococo Revival style, has been put on loan to Hay House from its owner Jennifer Cramer of Atlanta. This mahogany piece was probably purchased by William Butler Johnston in NYC in 1866, when he went there to raise capital to rebuild a section of the Georgia railroad destroyed by Sherman’s troops and concurrently went shopping for the partially empty house he had completed just as the Civil War began. Mrs. Johnston remarked in a letter to her sister that he had purchased “rather too much furniture” for their enormous dwelling.
Cave Spring’s Fairview School Receives $75,000 Pledge

Community must raise another $100,000 by August 2018

Community leaders Wes Walraven and Brian Moore recently pledged $75,000 to the restoration of the historically significant Fairview School.

The circa 1945 first-grade school building is one of the few remaining structures where African American children in Georgia were educated during segregation.

Walraven and Moore challenged the community to pledge another $100,000 by the end of August 2018. Conditions included that the funds “may only be used for the renovation of the First Grade School Building” and that “a plan must be put together and approved by the Board for the renovation of the building at a cost not to exceed $200,000.”

Many community leaders have already made pledges, and contractors have committed to donate their services and materials.

If you’d like to donate to the fundraising campaign, send checks to the Fairview-E.S. Brown Heritage Corp., 3 Central Plaza-Box 147, Rome, Ga. 30161.
Once it’s gone, it’s gone forever.

Historic depots. Fire stations. Old school buildings. Places we pass by so often we no longer notice the ornately carved wood, the 100-year-old brickwork, the grand old edifices. But these places face threats everyday—perhaps more so because we’ve grown accustomed to seeing them.

That’s why The Georgia Trust is bringing attention to ten Places in Peril across the state and providing ways you can help in your community. Each site represents many similar places throughout our state that are just as endangered and in need of community help as the ten we have identified. So take a look at this year’s list, learn more about the program, and visit our website at georgiatrust.org to find out how you can help protect these properties and others in your community.
A.J. Gillen Department Store
MAXEYS, OGLETHORPE COUNTY

THE STORY
Located on Main Street, the A.J. Gillen Department Store was built in 1907 when Maxeys was a booming cotton town. This upscale store boasted the only elevator in the county and an intricate, wrought iron staircase lit by an overhead skylight. The store featured everything a fine department store could offer. The collapse of the cotton economy in 1929-1930 led to the store’s closure. The building was subsequently used as a general merchandise store and a small plant for the manufacture of paper boxes before becoming vacant for many years. It was purchased in the 1980s and last used for a period of time to manufacture wood-burning stoves.

THE THREAT
The building currently sits vacant. Due to Maxeys’ isolated location, the large size of the building and its deteriorating condition, attracting a business to the A.J. Gillen Department Store is a challenge. Without that investment, the building will continue to deteriorate.

Bibb City Elementary
COLUMBUS, MUSCOGEE COUNTY

THE STORY
Bibb City Elementary School was constructed in 1915 by the Bibb Manufacturing Company for the children of its employees. It was later brought into the public school system, which later became the consolidated city-county school system of Columbus-Muscogee County. Bibb City is a former company-owned mill village which developed, as many did in the South, around the manufacturing plant that bore its name. Generations of the children of mill workers were educated at the school, and the building carries a strong memory and cultural history for the area.

THE THREAT
Owned by the Muscogee County Board of Education, Bibb City Elementary is currently vacant and boarded. The physical threat to the building is imminent. Part of the roof has collapsed leaving exposure to a significant portion of the interior. According to architects and school system engineers, the building is at risk of full collapse if the roof continues to deteriorate further. Community members fear that the building could be lost soon and local partner groups are rallying support for an adaptive reuse so that the building can once again serve the community.
Cuthbert Water Tower
CUTHBERT, RANDOLPH COUNTY

THE STORY
Built in 1895, the Cuthbert Water Tower is the only known water tower in the center of a federal highway. When US Highway 82 came through Cuthbert in the 1940s, the city council informed the federal government that the City of Cuthbert did not have the money to move the water tower, so the federal government ultimately built the highway around it. Although it has not been used as a water tower since the 1970s, it is an iconic symbol for Randolph County.

THE THREAT
Owned by the City of Cuthbert, the water tower suffers from a lack of maintenance. In addition to limited funds, the necessary repair and rehabilitation is made more difficult due to its location in the middle of a federal highway.

Fire Station No. 2
ROME, FLOYD COUNTY

THE STORY
An all-volunteer fire department was established in Rome in 1850, followed shortly by other competing fire departments. In 1908, the departments became consolidated and in 1927, Fire Station No. 2 opened its doors at 504 S. Broad Street. It is Rome’s second oldest fire station and one of South Rome’s last standing historic non-residential buildings.

THE THREAT
The fire station, built in the Tudor style, though its front gable half timbers are now missing, was gifted to the South Broad Baptist Church some time after its closing. It is mostly used for storage by the church, who has no long-term plans for the building. Some church leaders have expressed interest in seeing the building preserved, but they don’t have the resources to do so themselves. Maintenance issues are beginning to appear, and there is concern that without attention it will soon fall into disrepair.
Fort Valley Freight Depot

FORT VALLEY, PEACH COUNTY

THE STORY
The Central of Georgia Railroad erected the current brick freight depot in 1871 following the design for a number of postbellum depot facilities referred to as American Railroad Style. The design features elements such as deep, overhanging eaves, round-arched service doors and paired and carved brackets. For more than a century, the Fort Valley Freight Depot served as the key point for shipping and distribution of the South’s industrial products and agricultural products. Only ten depots of similar design remain standing in Georgia.

THE THREAT
The building sits between two active tracks currently used by Norfolk Southern Railroad and the Georgia Southern Railway of Georgia. The railroads have deeded the building to the Fort Valley Downtown Development Authority, under the condition that it be relocated. Fort Valley has secured a grant for the project from the Georgia Department of Transportation but it requires a match, so they are actively working on fundraising.

Foster-Thomason-Miller House

MADISON, MORGAN COUNTY

THE STORY
Built in 1883, the Foster-Thomason-Miller House is a major contributing building to Madison’s National Register Historic District and an outstanding example of the Aesthetic Movement in the South. In 2001, a fire broke out in the back of the house and severely damaged a rear addition. Although it did not spread into the historic structure, the original house suffered significant smoke and water damage.

THE THREAT
The property was sold to new owners, but no visible efforts have been undertaken to stabilize or restore the structure. A developer has shown interest in purchasing the property, with the intent to subdivide and develop the surrounding acreage; however, the rehabilitation of the Foster-Thomason-Miller House has not been a priority in the development plans.
Kit Jones Vessel
DARIEN, MCINTOSH COUNTY

THE STORY
The Kit Jones is a 60-foot wood-hull tugboat built on Sapelo Island in 1938-1939 by island owner and tobacco company heir R.J. Reynolds, Jr. After serving as a U.S. Coast Guard fireboat during World War II, the Kit Jones returned to Reynolds and Sapelo Island, continuing her service as a freight hauler and as a passenger vessel that provided a lifeline to the mainland for the residents of the island. Later the Kit Jones supported a variety of marine research projects for the University of Georgia Marine Institute and University of Mississippi.

THE THREAT
In 2013 the Kit Jones was put into drydock in Biloxi, and for many years, faced an uncertain future. The McIntosh Rod & Gun Club, Inc., a quasigovernmental partnership of McIntosh County and private club members, acquired official title to the Kit Jones in 2017 with the intention of returning it to Georgia; however, the vessel will need substantial stabilization work before it can be moved.

National Library Bindery Company
ATLANTA, FULTON COUNTY

THE STORY
The Southeast’s first library bindery, the company operated in the Peachtree Road location from 1929-1985, expanding in the 1950s and 1960s to accommodate their growth. In 1985 the company moved to Roswell and permanently closed its doors in 2015. The original building was designed by A. Ten Eyck Brown and Alfredo Barili, Jr., and is one of the oldest remaining structures on Peachtree Road in Buckhead. Today its tenant is Peachtree Battle Antiques.

THE THREAT
The building had been threatened by demolition. In 2016, the building’s owner, Branch Properties, received approval for the construction of a new apartment building at the corner of Terrace Drive and Peachtree Road. The plan called for the demolition of several buildings, including the Bindery. A demolition permit was issued by the City of Atlanta in late 2016. Fortunately, Branch Properties has since agreed to save the facade of the historic structure and incorporate it into its development plans.
Olmsted Linear Park Historic Properties

ATLANTA, DEKALB COUNTY

THE STORY
At the turn of the 20th century, renowned landscape architect Frederick Law Olmsted, most known for designing NYC’s Central Park, laid out Atlanta’s Druid Hills neighborhood and adjoining linear park with his sons. Although the houses in Atlanta’s Druid Hills Historic District are protected because they are in a locally designated landmark district, Olmsted’s original plan is threatened with being subdivided.

THE THREAT
Two historic properties, Pinebloom and the Patillo-Woolford House, highlight current threats to the original Olmsted plan. These two properties are threatened by plans to subdivide their acreage to build several smaller homes. The structures themselves are slated to remain though they would be reconfigured into condominiums. Subdividing these large lots could significantly impact the historic character of the neighborhood and linear park and may serve as a precedent for similar development.

Underground Savannah

SAVANNAH, CHATHAM COUNTY

THE STORY
As Georgia’s oldest European-settled city, Savannah’s array of underground archaeological sites is vast and diverse. These archaeological sites are a bank of unique and irreplaceable historical information about Savannah’s history and have the potential to not only expand the history of the past but tell the stories of those silent in historical accounts.

THE THREAT
These resources are being destroyed at an alarming rate as buildings are demolished and new ones are constructed. Savannah has no archaeological ordinance that requires comprehensive archaeological study in advance of a site’s destruction. As a result, countless archaeological sites have been destroyed. Unmitigated development continues across Savannah, moving into areas where archaeological sites have managed to survive thus far. Savannah’s current public policy needs to incorporate archaeology into its regulations.
CHERRY COTTAGE Washington, c. 1818
4BR/2BA home built by Constantine Church who bought the lot in 1784. One of the oldest buildings in Washington, Cherry Cottage is a one-and-a-half story wood-sided home containing 3,408 square feet, consisting of four bedrooms, two baths, large sitting room, parlor, formal dining room, kitchen, and library. Its lot is 1.10 acres and cannot be subdivided. Located in a beautiful historic neighborhood. $130,000.

ROSSITER-LITTLE HOUSE Sparta, c. 1779
Considered the oldest houses in Sparta, the Rossiter-Little House was constructed by Dr. Timothy Rossiter. The two front wings were added before the Civil War. The Rossiter-Little House was documented by the Historic American Buildings Survey in the 1930s. Original materials include fireplace mantels, heart pine floors and interior walls of hand cut boards. The two-story house has a kitchen, eight main rooms and two bathrooms. This house has been rehabilitated and is in excellent condition. Comes furnished with period antiques. $140,000.

SPARTA FEED AND SEED Sparta, c. 1890s
This wood frame commercial building dates to the late nineteenth century and served as Sparta’s Feed and Seed. The main building is two-stories with a hipped roof of corrugated metal. A later one-story addition was built on the east side of the building, and a metal pent roof serves as a cover for the building’s front entrance. The historic Sparta Feed and Seed building is located one block north of Broad Street, Sparta’s main commercial street. Needs substantial rehabilitation. $17,500.

HISTORIC PRESERVATION INSTITUTE
Preservation Leadership Course
Wednesdays, January 24–February 14, 6:30 p.m.

The Georgia Trust, in collaboration with Lord Aeck Sargent Architecture, has developed a course to educate real estate professionals on the history of Atlanta’s architecture, the legal foundations of historic preservation, and the economic incentives that are available to many restoration and rehabilitation projects. The course will be presented over four sessions, with three two-hour lectures, and a completion reception and networking opportunity. Lecture topics include: history of Georgia and metropolitan Atlanta; Georgia architectural styles; prominent historic architects of Atlanta; historic preservation law; and economic incentives for historic preservation. Space is limited.

Continuing Education Credits: The course is certified for 6 hours of Real Estate Continuing Education through the Georgia Institute of Real Estate. Participants must attend all of the first three sessions to receive the credits. The course is also certified for 6 AIA Continuing Education Learning Units.

For more information or to register, visit GeorgiaTrust.org or contact Ben Sutton at bsutton@georgiathrust.org or 404-885-7819.

Georgia Trust Awards $10,650 to Callahan Incentive Grant Recipients

Made possible by Barbara and Les Callahan, long-time supporters of the Georgia Trust, the inaugural Callahan Incentive Grant was awarded to five organizations that are undertaking the rehabilitation of a historic building or site:

The Cassina Garden Club on St. Simons Island has been awarded $2,500 for the restoration of the interior walls of the Hamilton Plantation tabby slave cabins.

The Lexington Historic Preservation Commission in Lexington has been awarded $1,650 for the insulation, minor carpentry, and weatherization of the recently rehabilitated first floor of the 1817 Lexington Presbyterian Manse.

The Madison-Morgan Cultural Center in Madison has been awarded $1,500 to complete the renovation of two exterior doors and the weatherproofing on all exterior doors at the Madison-Morgan Cultural Center.

The Ruth Hartley Mosley Memorial Center in Macon has been awarded $2,500 toward repairing the roof for this historic site.

Sunnyside School Community Center in Pine Mountain has been awarded $2,500 toward the installation of a new HVAC system to replace the current open gas space heaters and window air conditioners, as well as insulation of the attic space.

The Callahan Incentive Grant is made possible by longtime Georgia Trust supporters Barbara and Les Callahan.

2018 GEORGIA TRUST STUDY TOUR

RAMBLE to NATCHES (with optional New Orleans Pre-trip Extension)

February 21-25, 2018

Immerse yourself in the rich history and culture of the Mississippi River Delta, where you’ll have privileged access to privately owned creole plantations, antebellum mansions and historically significant sites.

Visit GeorgiaTrust.org for details.
The Georgia Trust is “Rollin’ on the River” this spring. Located on the banks of the Chattahoochee River, Columbus has beautiful historic homes with an extensive variety of architectural styles and a vibrant downtown.

Each day you will discover a different historic district located within the city. On Friday, explore the Weracoba-St. Elmo Historic District, an early 20th century neighborhood containing the largest and most intact collection of Craftsman Bungalow, Tudor Revival, Neoclassical Revival and Spanish Revival style homes in the state. That evening, dine at St. Elmo, an exquisite antebellum Greek Revival mansion.

Saturday’s Ramble will take you to the original Columbus Historic District, a 26-block Victorian residential neighborhood. Located along the Chattahoochee River, the Columbus Historic District has retained its original character and charm while undergoing rehabilitation and restoration. Take a break from touring to enjoy lunch at one of the many charming local restaurants in bustling downtown Columbus.

On Sunday, begin your day with brunch at the Eagle and Phenix Mill Complex, once the largest mill in the South following the Civil War. Explore the Wynnton Historic District and Dinglewood Historic District, a neighborhood developed from an antebellum estate. The estate, which was subdivided between 1917 and 1946, includes early 20th century residences featuring Italianate, English Vernacular Revival and Colonial Revival style architecture.
